CASTLE STUDIES: RECENT PUBLICATIONS – 30 and 31 (2017 and 2018)

By Dr Gillian Scott with the assistance of Dr John R. Kenyon

Introduction

Hello and welcome to the latest, belated edition of the CSG annual bibliography. This volume covers almost 400 references, so we have plenty of reading to do over the coming year!

I must apologise for the long delay in getting Bibliography Volume 30 to members. It got to the stage last year where it was more sensible to roll Volumes 30 and 31 together, rather than producing two separate volumes. This bumper bibliography therefore covers two years' worth of publications; between mid-August 2016 and mid-August 2018.

Having fallen behind my intended completion date, I have also made the difficult decision to largely forgo the review section for this volume of the bibliography. This is the section that makes by far the most time to produce. I found that in trying to write it I was holding up producing the full list bibliography that has been ready for quite some time now, and the bibliography was going to be abnormally long. Rather than hold it up further I have therefore taken this step. The review section is set out with the normal section headings and I have bullet pointed beneath each one the various publications that would have been described in that section. For the most part this is done alphabetically, but there are two exceptions; in the country-specific categories I have listed monographs and booklets first, before journal articles for instance; and I have still tried to group related publications (e.g. on the same castle, or resulting from the same research project) such that some general articles appear in the general monographs section and some appear out of alphabetical order – where I have done this I have included curly brackets to mark the group. As usual there is a full alphabetical list at the end of the Volume and the usual section providing corrections to previous Volumes. I hope that this maintains the usability of the bibliography, and if anyone would like to ask me for further details of any of the publications mentioned, please do; I have seen and/or hold copies of most.

This has been a difficult decision, involving deleting sections and summaries that John and I had already written, but I think it was for the best in view of getting the bibliography issued, getting caught up, and moving on with the production of Volume 32 for 2019. I hope that the membership will understand this omission and my reasons. I apologise to the authors who absolutely deserve to have their work highlighted in this bibliography. This is in no way a value judgement on the great work that has been produced over the last two years.

As always, I am reliant on the support of members to draw my attention to recently published articles and books. I encourage people to let me know if they spot a castle-related publication, regardless as to whether you think I should have seen it. Forthcoming Publications

Just after the mid-August 2018 cut-off date for this bibliography, the latest Château Gaillard volume 28 was published on L'environnement du château containing papers produced at the 2016 conference in Roscommon. Authors include Fiona Beglane, Oliver Creighton, Karen Dempsey, Piers Dixon, Thomas Finan, Ben Murtagh, Rachel Swallow, Therron Welstead, Bill Woodburn and William Wyeth. Similarly, the Castle Studies Group festschrift in honour of Derek Renn was launched at the one day conference in October having been published in August 2018. It contains contributions from 20 authors and is available to order now from Neil Guy. I will discuss the content of both of these volumes in Bibliography 32.

Whilst at Château Gaillard conference I also had the opportunity to look at the Castella Maris Baltici monograph series published by the Society of Medieval Archaeology in Finland. These are the published papers of a series of biennial conferences and are now on Volume XIII Building a Castle. Preparing for War or Keeping the Peace? (<http://www.skas.fi/in-english/amaf-series/>). The papers are in English and German. I will note contents of Volume XIII in next year's bibliography.

Updated editions of the English Heritage Red Guidebooks for Pevelin Castle and Orford Castle are probably now available, Malcolm Hislop is producing a guide for Barnard Castle, and Mike Osborne's next offering, Defending Northamptonshire should also be available soon.

In Irish castle studies, Victoria McAlister is set to publish the first ever serious monograph dedicated to Irish tower houses. The Irish Tower House 1300-1650 Society, Economy and Environment is eagerly anticipated and will be available in June 2019 from Manchester University Press.

This bibliography lists Ottaway's assessment of the archaeology of Winchester, covering prehistory to the Victorian and modern periods. Also in the Winchester Studies series, the following two volumes of interest to members are noted as in preparation – Winchester Studies 6.i Winchester Castle: fortress, palace and garden and Winchester Studies 6.ii Wolvesey Palace (<http://winchesterstudies.org.uk>). I am not sure of the timescale to completion.

Just before the cut-off date of this bibliography Christopher Woolgar produced an edited volume of essays entitled The Elite Household in England, 1100-1550. Proceedings of the 2016 Harlaxton Symposium with Shaun Tyas. I have yet to see to a copy to note if there are any castle-related papers, but it is sure to be of interest to members nonetheless.

Corrections to Bibliography 29

I made typographical errors in the titles of the following two papers, the correct references are as follows:

Wiggins, K. 'How to transform a castle', Archaeology Ireland 29:4 (2015), 32-36.

Jensen, C. S. 'Castles and war in 13th century Livonia and Estonia according to Henry of Livonia', in R. Atzbach, L. Meldgaard Sass Jensen and L. Plith Lauritsen (eds), Castles at War: The Danish Castle Research Association "Magt, Borg og Landskab". Interdisciplinary Symposium 2013, 87-100. Bonn: Habelt, 2015.o

I also misspelled Mike Osborne's and Morag Fyfe's names; my apologies.

Bibliography

The dates cited for periodicals are those years for which they have been issued. An author's initials appear as published. In some cases it has not been possible to obtain the page number references for the entries.

As usual, I list anonymous material first, and those with surnames beginning with 'Mac' or 'Mc' are treated as 'Mac', hence, for example, 'Manning' appearing after 'McSparron'.

Please notify me of any omissions from, or errors in, the following listing. Also, I would welcome offprints and pdfs of any papers that I have listed in this and previous issues, and please could authors note this request re. forthcoming material. Having such material to hand makes the compilation of the CSG bibliographies so much easier!

Volume 66-67 of the Europa Nostra Scientific Bulletin, covering the annual meetings of 2011 and 2012, was published in 2014. The meetings covered the themes of Heritage Conservation and Enhancement in Former Conflict Zones and Underground Defences and Fortifications. The volume is available to view online: <http://www.europanostra.org/our-work/publications/> and it contains several papers of interest to the group, as well as those interested in later fortifications. The following papers look at aspects of castles and fortified towns:

- Feridun, I 'Othello Tower / Citadel: Famagusta walled city', Europa Nostra Scientific Bulletin 66-67 (2014), 69-72.

I assume that Volume 68-69 of the Europa Nostra Scientific Bulletin would have been published in 2016/7, and so should be in this bibliography, but I have yet to see it to identify if there are any castle-related papers included.

Acknowledgements (Parts A and B)

I am very grateful to a number of people who provided John and me with information that appears in Parts A and B, and other assistance.

Jennifer Cryer, Katherine Davey, Penny Dransart, Morag Fyfe, Neil Guy, Marton Hannson, Taco Hermans, David Ingham, Gwyn Meirion-Jones, Mike Osborne, Tadgh O’Keeffe, Peter Purton, Derek Renn, Dan Spencer, Geoffrey Stell, Ian Stevenson and Rachel Swallow.

I must make special mention of the late Philip Davis in this section. Philip was a key contributor to the bibliography across at least the last five years that I have been producing it and no doubt also when John prepared the bibliography single-handed. Philip pointed to me several key papers that I otherwise would have missed and was especially good at finding grey literature references and e-theses for inclusion. He credited the bibliography as a useful tool for keeping the Gatehouse website up-to-date, but in truth Gatehouse was up-to-date in many cases long before the bibliography was issued. I believe he assisted me much more than I assisted him. His contribution and frequent emails will be missed.

My apologies to anyone that I have omitted inadvertently.
